Part III: Fiscal Explanation, Bill Provisions, and Estimated Cost

The fiscal impact of HB 110 on local governments is expected to be nil to moderate, and dependent on whether or not a detainee death occurred in the local jail.

The Bureau of Justice Statistics, a federal agency, provided the following data regarding the number of local jail deaths for Kentucky, 2000-2013.

Number of Local Jail Deaths
Year	Deaths	Year	Deaths	Year	Deaths	Year	Deaths
2000	16	2004	16	2008	22	2012	21
2001	13	2005	22	2009	18	2013	13
2002	12	2006	21	2010	21
2003	14	2007	25	2011	16

Creation of this Panel would be a state-level expense. However, local governments could incur cost related to the submission of the information required by HB 110 to the Panel.

This would include:

- All records or documentation regarding the deceased detainee at the time of booking, during detention, at the time of the incident leading to the fatality and subsequent to the incident;
- All records of services provided the detainee by the county jail or regional detention center;
- All documentation relating to any investigation of the fatality;
- All documentation of actions taken as a result of the fatality;
- All information related to first responders including emergency medical service, fire department, law enforcement, and coroner;
- All medical and behavioral services provided to the deceased detainee including hospitalization and emergency treatment, dental records, specialist records, and autopsy reports;
- All photographs of injuries sustained by the deceased detainee during detention in the county jail or regional detention center;
- All notes and records of all local law enforcement officers who detained or had physical contact with the deceased detainee.

Expenses related to the collecting, organizing, copying, and submitting of the required information and record copies may be a cost hardship depending on the size of the local agency, number of employees, and operating budget. Additionally, the local government may incur cost associated with a local employee who might be called before the Panel as part of the review process including cost related to covering those job responsibilities during the employee's absence.
